Introduction

Are you looking for a way to earn extra income and more that you can do from home in your spare time?

Many moms who don't want to go out and get a regular job that will steal precious time from their children, and others such as retirees, students, and even those with full-time jobs who still want to earn extra money without having to disrupt their lives are looking for this type of income opportunity.

If there was such a job that didn't require any training, was easy and enjoyable to do and could be done from home in your spare time, wouldn't you want to know more about it?

Sure you would!

And that's what doing paid surveys is all about. It is legitimate, legal, you can do it from anywhere, and you can decide what hours suit you best. If that sounds good to you, read the rest of this report to learn how to get started...

What Are Paid Surveys All About?

You are probably wondering why these paid survey opportunities even exist. The reason paid surveys are available and currently increasing in popularity is because big companies know the value of their consumer's opinions.

Did you know that it is estimated that these companies spend around $2 billion each year on advertising and marketing their products? They know that they can dramatically cut their costs by using online methods for finding customers who can offer them valuable feedback.

And to get the large number of willing participants needed for feedback during product development and marketing, they are willing to pay the people that they get opinions from.

This makes paid surveys a win-win situation for both you and the company requesting consumer feedback. The companies want to get their finger on the pulse of the market - find out what their consumers want and need. In return, you give them this insider information for a fee, or other form of compensation.

The way paid surveys work is that these companies offer applicants the opportunity to join in their surveys – often completed online. You'll be asked to complete surveys if you match certain demographics, which vary depending on the survey. Each time you participate you get compensated.

How Much Can I Make?

Many times, you will receive a small amount such as $5-10 per survey. These types of surveys are quick to complete, so these small payments can add up fast.

Sometimes you may receive a gift, or be entered in sweepstakes for a chance at a much larger cash or prize.

Other times you may even have the opportunity to get paid as much as $150 per hour for your time to participate in a focus group. It really depends on what each company is looking for, and if you are the best person for the job. Each offer you apply for will let you know ahead of time what the compensation offered will be.

As you can see, the amount you earn by doing paid surveys is dependent on the number of surveys that you complete and their value. What this means is that although you won't earn a regular salary, you will be in control of how much time you want to spend doing these and how much you can earn.

The great thing is that there are literally thousands of these companies that are looking for you to participate in their paid surveys, so with a bit of effort and focus you have a good chance of making some solid extra income and more from these opportunities.

What Types Of Surveys Are Available?

There are many different options with paid surveys and promotions, such as normal online or offline surveys that have multiple-choice answers.

Focus groups are held both online and offline and for these, you are paid by the hour to give your opinion on a product, and how it could be improved, or marketed better for consumers.

You can also get to try out and be the first to see new products. Often you get to keep the products, as well as getting paid for trying them out, and giving your feedback and opinions about them.

There are many choices available, and you won't always get the highest paying jobs every time you do a survey, but you will almost always be offered valuable compensation of some type if you participate.

What Is Expected Of You?

You don't need to be a professional in any particular field, or need any specialized training, but you will need to be able to offer your honest opinion on the surveys, or feedback that you provide to these companies.

You choose the surveys or promotions that you want to participate in, and once you have been accepted and have committed to doing a survey, you must complete it in the given time frame.

Sometimes, especially with the higher paying surveys, you may be required to give some personal details, such as your name, or the location where you are living. Don't worry though, the companies are not allowed to pass your information on to another party without your explicit consent.

How To Avoid Scams

Scams are everywhere on the internet, and it is important to be informed, and vigilant when it comes to choosing work from home opportunities. It is no different with paid surveys.

The best way to avoid scams is to join a professional paid survey membership site that will offer you support, as well as screen the companies that you can be doing surveys for.

Make sure to choose a paid survey membership site that is well established, has a good client base of participating companies, and has a good reputation.

The legitimate companies will offer you a satisfaction guarantee in their membership site, as well as have support in place for those times when you have questions, or have trouble understanding how things work.

Paid surveys are a great way to earn extra income from the comfort of your own home. The start up costs are low, you don't need any prior qualifications, and you can work at your own pace, in your own hours.

As long as you have a computer and an Internet connection, you can easily start earning extra income, getting free samples and have a chance of winning prizes by participating in online paid surveys as a work-from-home opportunity.
